

Health Aspects of Milk and Dairy Products

We are pleased to announce the Max Rubner Conference 2013 to be held from 7 to 9 October 2013, at the Max Rubner-Institut, the German Federal Research Institute of Nutrition and Food, in Karlsruhe, Germany.

The Max Rubner Conference 2013 will address the topic „Health Aspects of Milk and Dairy Products“. In Western countries milk and dairy products contribute significantly to the intake of essential nutrients. Recently, health effects of milk and dairy products have increasingly come into public focus regarding their beneficial but also potential adverse effects. The aim of the Max Rubner Conference 2013 is to present current knowledge regarding the health aspects of the consumption of milk and dairy products in the light of recent nutritional, clinical, and technological research.

The Max Rubner Conference 2013 will give an update on the latest developments on:

- Milk constituents, including nutrients and steroid hormones
- Impact of feeding, milking, and processing on nutritionally relevant milk constituents
- Epidemiological evidence on health effects
- Human intervention studies on health effects
- Mechanisms of potential beneficial/adverse health effects

During a final panel discussion experts will discuss the findings of the Conference and elaborate future strategies for public health recommendations on the consumption of milk and dairy products.

We invite you to participate in this inspiring conference, to meet colleagues from other institutions and countries, to discuss common problems, and to inform yourself about the latest developments in the area of health aspects of milk/dairy products. We are looking forward to meeting you in Karlsruhe!
